PREFACE.

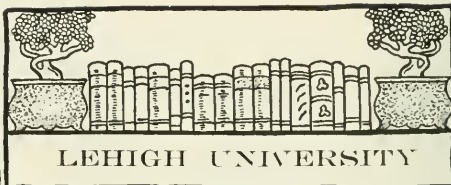

Boyle

A GAIN it is time for the EPILOGUE, the summary and memento of the college year, to be placed before the students and friends of Lehigh, with whose approbation we sincerely hope it will meet. If only it wins favor among them we will feel amply repaid for our labor. Our aim has been to produce a book which would be worthy of Lehigh and picture clearly the advancement which it has made during the past year. Realizing that the EPILOGUE is to a large extent a directory, we have endeavored to make it accurate and concise. The element of sameness which necessarily is present in every annual is relieved, not by any new feature, the success of which would be doubtful, but by an increased amount and—we trust—a superior quality of illustrations. The former arrangement of fraternities has been returned to and all statistics have been omitted.

It is fitting that we express here our gratitude to all who have so generously aided us and lightened our labors in the preparation of this volume. To them should be given praise for its excellencies, and to us blame for its defects; for they have made success all but impossible.

On the breast of old South Mountain
 Reared against the sky,
 Stands our noble "Alma Mater"
 Stands our dear Lehigh

ALMA MATER SONG

Where the Lehigh's rocky rapids rush
 from out the West,
 'Mid a grove of spreading chestnuts,
 walls in ivy dressed,
 On the breast of old South Mountain,
 reared against the sky,
 Stands our noble Alma Mater: stands
 our dear Lehigh

Like a watchman on the mountain
 stands she grandly bold,
 Earth and Heaven's secrets seeking,
 hoarding them like gold.
 All she wrests from Nature's storehouse, naught escapes her eye,
 Gives she gladly to her dear sons,
 while we bless Lehigh.

We will ever live to love her, live to praise her name:
 Live to make our lives add luster to her glorious fame.
 Let the glad notes wake the echoes,
 joyously we cry,
 Hail to Thee, our Alma Mater! Hail!
 All Hail, Lehigh!

ROBERT PACKER LINDERMAN

Robert Packer Linderman, alumnus and trustee of the University, died on January 21, 1903. He was born in 1863. After a preparatory course at the Mt. Pleasant Military Academy he entered Lehigh, being graduated in the course of Science and Letters with the degree of Ph.B. in 1884. For high scholarship he was elected a member of the Phi Beta Kappa Society. He was also a member of the Sigma Phi Fraternity.

His connection with the University after graduation was intimate. He was active and influential as a member of the Alumni Association, and for two years held the office of president. He served on the Board of Trustees from 1895 until the time of his death, and was a member of the Executive Committee of the Board and of the Committee on College Administration. He was always ready to aid the University, both by valuable advice in its management and substantial contributions to its support. In him Lehigh lost one of the ablest of her graduates.

Did you ever read over a bunch of Senior histories of different years and from different colleges? Did you ever notice the striking similarity, if not in words, most certainly in spirit? In stentorian voice they proclaim that four years ago the precious and pure seed was planted in the fertile soil of their Alma Mater, and now having blossomed forth into a state of teeming maturity, they stand ready to yield the world its rich harvest. Or else they drift into a reverie in which they heave deep sighs and ponder over their own greatness.

To be sure, we have reached the top of the ladder, and to satisfy the popular opinion of a Senior, we should, from this lofty pinnacle, with sedate mien gaze, as upon a panorama, upon a retrospect of our lives, and with kindly indulgence survey the seething horde struggling to gain the coveted vantage point. It should be a calm and solemn moment, and our thoughts, an amalgamation of clearness and foresight, should be pregnant with sorrow—for we are about to pass from the sheltering wing of our foster mother out into the cold, cold world, black and unfathomable.

The above is very poetical, but the crowd with which we have associated for the past four years would not stand for it a minute.

If any one would tell them that they are on top of the ladder and have the privilege to gaze and "think thoughts," there would be a painful silence for a moment, and then a close observer might see the whole gang trying to sneak down without being seen, so they might kick the ladder from under the rest of the bunch.

And then, again, while our thoughts may be full of happenings next June, and our hearts are commencing to be torn by fluctuating emotions of joy and sorrow, we have only started the second term, and some of us are so much occupied with back work to make up, and a thumping big amount of stuff to come,—together with hard weather and disastrous strikes—that our time for self-congratulation and reverie is woefully limited.

But why this digression? "This is not history," I hear my readers say. Yet, after all, what is there to tell? The most important events of our college life have been told year by year, and to repeat them here seems useless.

If, after this exordium, you will permit us to look back over our past, we see various events which are grouped in a most pleasant setting. It is not at all strange that the good times in this retrospect should stand out so clearly. For we do not believe that college is intended solely to acquire book knowledge, and therefore in each of these good times we see an additional reason why we should be entitled to a little piece of skin from Mary's lamb next June.

Our class banquets—what times over which to dream! For there is nothing else which has so helped to bind our class together and to contribute to the spirit of good nature, which is characteristic of every Lehigh man, no matter of what class he may be.

In sports we play a broad and generous schedule, and a stranger in looking at our picture may see that during our four years we have brought home a scalp from each of our worthy competitors. But what will we see in years to come, when time has cast dark shadows upon the brilliant colors? We will see, as plainly then as now, a small cluster of trophies, won in battles fought some twelve miles from our own fields. Battles which are surrounded by unfading memories—memories which will deepen and fasten us closer and closer to our home of four happy and—let us hope—profitable years.

At our Senior Banquet were many vacant places, which should have been occupied by some of the best and truest men we have known. Some have fallen by the wayside and some have stepped from line of their own free will. But no matter how they have gone, we miss them, and no matter how symmetrically we have developed, we find that the proportions would be better for their presence.

Our sojourn here has been pleasing, profitable and encouraging. We have all had our troubles and disappointments, real or imaginary, but in every trial we have had friends to whom we could turn, fellows who know us better than we know ourselves, men whose faces when we score a success light with a glow of mingled pride and hope, though it is sometimes hope deferred. Moved, may we say inspired, by the sacredness and strength of these friendships founded on such a long and constant intimacy, we cannot speak enough about the fellows with whom we have associated here; and when we think of leaving them we grow truly sad and serious.

Trite and hackneyed as it is, we have now come to the parting of the ways, and it reminds us how little we control our own destinies. Youthful aspirations will be thrust aside.

" Oft shall glowing hope aspire,
Oft shall cherished love retire,
Ere we shall meet again."

But, classmates, when we do, which God grant shall be soon and often, let us fight the old fights, revive the sleeping memories and celebrate our many successes as becomes Lehigh gentlemen.

RAY E. WUNDERLY C. E. Nazareth, Pa.
Civil Engineering Society.

IT HAPPENED shortly after the mid-year exams. It had been raining all day, but now the clouds had broken and the stars made the heavens resplendent with their brilliancy. I was hurrying home alone at a late hour, when suddenly my attention was arrested by a faint, green light in the distance, moving in curves, whose equations would baffle a Lambert. It approached me very slowly, and for the moment I was decidedly nonplussed. Presently the familiar outlines of a student lamp were discernable, held by an ink-stained hand. A glimpse at the face of this miniature Statue of Liberty showed it to be none other than that of my flaxen-haired predecessor. With a superb flourish he hove to, and thus spake: "Long and diligently have I sought thee, fellow-classmate; at last my search is ended. Wherefore, I pray you, accept this lamp of wisdom; may it shed its rays on you to good effect and inspire you to a truthful narration of the splendid achievements of our class." He then transferred the lamp to my care; and, once relieved of his burden, with a loud and perfect imitation of a noisy equine smile—if such things be—quickly disappeared around the corner.

I hastened home with my priceless treasure to enjoy the benefit of its magic influence. The appended potpourri is the result of my endeavors. But, gentle reader, be not harshly critical; for, ere I could finish, the lamp gave up the ghost, and I was compelled to do the rest in darkness. 'Twas ever thus.

The class of 1904 is especially remarkable because it was the only class that succeeded in entering Lehigh in the fall of 1900; since then an unkind fate, with the material assistance of Allentown, has robbed us of many of our charter members. To offset this loss, 1903 has generously come to our aid and filled the breach with a goodly number who have succumbed to the ravages of chapel attendance and "gym."

Three years ago! What memories the thought awakens! Then it was "Freshie this" and "Freshie that," until, on Founder's Day, we proved that we had men of mettle as well as fiends. And who of us shall ever forget the chagrin of 1903 on the morning of Founder's Day upon spotting our class banner in brown and white on the Opera House? Bribes were of no avail; and only the fury of a high wind was able to bring it down, much to the relief of 1903. This year we also held a most successful class banquet, interference by the Sophomores being practically nil.

A year passed. That terrible malady, Sophomoritis, laid hold of us. The symptoms were omnipresent, a peculiar whistle upon sight of our inferiors, a tendency to be watchful and mysterious, an unwonted delight in staying out all night, and then an eruption of green spots all over the clothes and hands, not unlike paint, accompanied by an odor a-la-theatrical bill-poster. The infection spread rapidly, and 1904 was true to Lehigh traditions. The Freshmen learned their lesson well; and in recognition of their rapid advances, they enjoyed the unheard-of privilege of a personally conducted tour through the Bohemian quarters of the Bethlehems, and experienced the strenuous mysteries of flashlight photography. Our Sophomore banquet was a decided success, if noise and enthusiasm count for anything; but the percentage of kleptomaniacs was alarming. The remainder of the year was a struggle with that arch-enemy, Calculus. The odds were against him, however, and he suffered the extreme penalty of burning at the stake.

Some one has well said, "College days begin when we are Freshmen, but college life begins when we are Juniors." How evident this was when we returned to college last fall! From the boisterous, vaunting Sophomore a new man had evolved—an upper classman, if you please,—with all the rights and privileges appertaining thereto. For a time the importance of our position, especially with reference to the actions of our protégés, gave us no little concern. We have showed them the "ropes" and taught them how they were to be used. This done, by a customary dispensation of the powers that be, we enjoyed a quasi-respite from the strenuous existence of the first two years. Our social proclivities are a well-established fact. At all the parties, hops and assemblies 1904 has been well represented ; and our Junior Promenade will always be remembered as one of the most successful ever held.

Another source of justifiable pride is the important position we hold in college athletics. A majority of the members of last season's victorious football eleven were Juniors, including the captain ; and who will ever forget that glorious day when eleven sons of Lehigh earned a niche for themselves in Jim's Hall of Fame by defeating our neighbors down the river. In other sports we are equally well represented, and our athletic record is one of which we may feel proud.

The life of my Aladdin's lamp is fast ebbing away, and with it my inspiration. The corduroy-trousered genie of the lamp has deserted me. The gloom is gathering fast, and soon all will be dark. I must hasten on.

We have reached the resting point of our upward climb. Yesterday we were struggling with entrance exams. ; to-morrow we enter upon the last stage of our preparation for life. So let us rest to-day ; let us forget the petty bickerings of past years, patch up our " affaires du coeur," make merry, and enjoy life as only a Junior can.

Letters from Bill, a Sophomore at Lehigh, to Bill,
Who Should be One

SOUTHERN BESSLEHEM, Sept. 28, 1902.

Dear Bill:—

You remember that meek looking aggregation that wandered into town last June, took a bunch of entrance exams, obligingly did a number of select vanderbilt turns for the edification of those of us who stayed to snore at magic lantern slides through a month of summer school, and then wandered home again? Well, that crowd is back again. On opening night we went out to renew acquaintance and secure a bucket brigade. Both projects met a great measure of success. A large number of delightful scrimmages occurred on both sides of the river, not the least interesting being one at Five Points, in which the Fresh showed surprising nerve. They outnumbered us only about two to one, and yet, with the aid of the Juniors, fought us to a stand-still. Through the medium of frequent contact with Dakota Street cobble stones I had begun to think the Fresh were indeed worth about three whoops from a region unmentionable; but when we met again on the campus at 5 a. m., class against class, and rushed them off of sacred ground out into Packer Avenue with such a notable lack of politeness and such a great abundance of vehemence, that no amount of invitation could prevail upon them to return, my opinion dropped to the original state. I think it will never change.

On the next day we met them again on the Athletic Field, slapped them on the wrist, and took their banner away. Honest, Bill, it's a pity to take their money. You're certainly missing great joy! Would to the gods that during summer term you had paid more attention to Mechanics and less to Dorney's.

Yours as ever,

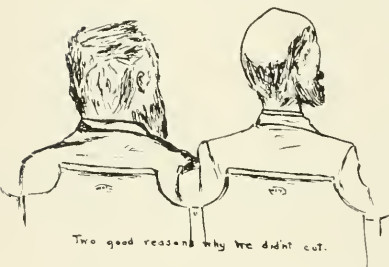

BILL.

SOUS BESSLEHEM, Oct. 5, 1902.

Dear Bill:—

Our days are unending ecstasy. Our evenings are constant bliss. On the campus and in the town the Freshmen are as easy as using a 15 x 12 x 4 Heath's Dictionary in a Dutch re-. Early in the week they tried to get their picture taken and didn't: later they had it taken without trying at all.

First, they cut Hygiene while we were in Math., and made a hurried movement toward the chapel steps. "Landy," who is taking up Hygiene extra, skated down the fire-escape and raised an admirable racket on the campus. Some of us managed to cut Math.; more of us didn't. Our chemists, however, tore away from the lab and came down upon a large two-horse dray that stood in front of the chapel, like a wolf on the fold. The big dray full of dry goods boxes received the undivided attention of the Sophs, and when the driver started to use a 5-lb. hammer to repel boarders, a well-known Junior of notable physical prowess climbed upon the wagon in order that he might hand the driver a few just on general "Good old Lehigh," "Town vs. Gown" principles. As he climbed he put his foot through a large dry goods box and stepped upon the back of the photographer's neck. The whereabouts of the photographer discovered, it took just twelve shakes of Wilhelm's goat's tail to have the camera on the ground and reduced to pieces, size .000mm².

I said some of us didn't get out of Math. Our section wistfully viewed the mill from the fourth floor of Packer. Several of us decided to leave, but a certain heavy-set gentleman, who stood in front of a locked door and behind a ferocious looking beard, with the door knob in one hand and a 4-foot blackboard rule in the other, materially altered our decision. We stayed.

Later in the week there was a Freshman picture taken. The president of the Fresh Class was there, so it was highly successful. The group was beautifully arranged, the placards and milk bottles were artistically distributed, the Brighton formed an excellent setting, the plates developed excellently. Add photography to the list of Soph accomplishments.

Yours always,

BILL.

SOUS BESSLEHEM, Oct. 13, 1902.

Bill:—

I'm mad. That doesn't half express it. If you didn't belong to the W. C. T. U., I'd use language that would relegate Capt. Kid's vocabulary to innocuous desuetude (which, being translated, is, "Put him so pesky far behind the band he couldn't hear the music"). No, the Fresh didn't get a picture taken. They couldn't take malaria in the Dismal Swamp. We took their president on a free one-day trolley excursion to Freemansburg and spoiled any possible picture plans. He departed with such quietness and lack of ceremony that none knew whither he had flitted.

No! The Fresh didn't win on Founder's Day. They won the football game. We make no squeal; they had the better team. That's unpleasant, but I'm not mad about that, for we trimmed 'em in baseball and track—both generous victories against the close 5-0 of the football game—and won the day. Incidentally we fired 'em off the grass of the athletic field and made the whole tribe of 'em run the gauntlet after the sports. But I'm mad, and so's the whole class, Bill—maddernell. This is why. The whole Soph Class—everybody—was out all Founder's Night—the whole night, and do you think there was a Freshman to be found? Nary! Except a few poor unfortunates who carried paste, every last one of them remained by his own fireside. Founder's Day eve and the Freshmen not out! Ye gods! Not enough spunk in the whole Fresh Class to get out a crowd on the night before Founder's Day! If that crowd doesn't deserve the time-honored Freshman title, B E B E, then none ever did. Out the whole night and not a scrap for recompense. Those miserable shysters! If I write another sentence I'll cuss.

Yours,

BILL.

P. S.—I've never known a body of persons to believe more thoroughly in and act more thoroughly upon the principle that is set forth in the old saw which says that "Discretion is the better part of valor" than those poor Fresh.

SONS BESSLEHEM, October 24, 1902.

Dear Bill:

Basketball—1905, 23; 1906, 3. But that isn't worth discussion beside the banquet. I suppose you've read all about it in the papers. It's folly for any pen to attempt a description of that affair. I must see you and tell you about it. For the present it sufficeth to say that in the fondest dreams of rough house in which my turmoil loving intellect has revelled, I've never even faintly conceived of a period so absolutely surcharged with bliss as the evening we spent with the Freshmen at the Sun Inn. 'Tis said that at the Limerick Fair there occurs a yearly auction, in which the universal weapon is the shillaly, and in which the cry is, "Whenever you see a head, hit it!" This arrangement seems to offer opportunity for positively unlimited joy; but if one may change Limerick for the Sun Inn, South Bethlehem, Pa., replace the shillaly with the sugar bowl, steak plate or other moveable article, and allow the battle cry to remain intact, it seems as though we have the Sons of Erin beat to a pulp.

It's the first time a Freshman banquet has been broken up in a decade. Did I say broken up? That banquet was disintegrated—pulverized! The event is a fitting end to the year's history of the Class of 1905.

Yours for Lehigh,

BILL.

Historian.

In Memoriam

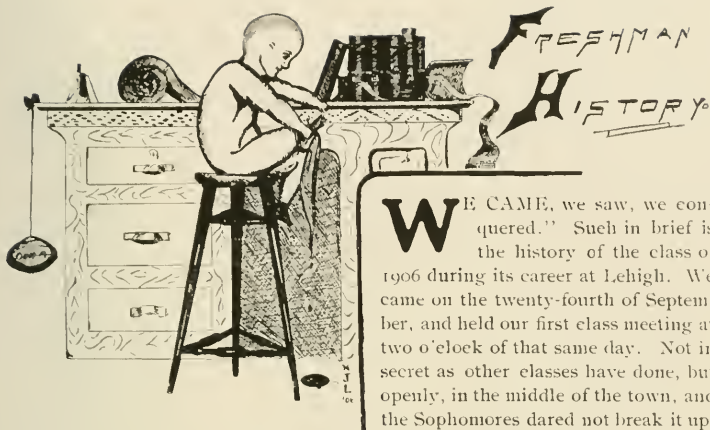

WILSON SWARTZ HECKLER

CLASS OF 1905

BORN JUNE 28, 1884

DIED FEBRUARY 6, 1963

the Sophomores when they were trying to put up posters (written by a Senior, their inability to do literary work being recognized even by themselves). At Five Points we rushed through them in less time than it takes to tell. Several Freshmen in the middle of the column were unaware that a rush had taken place. At the New Street Bridge we captured their president and escorted him homeward. No posters were seen in town next day.

Several Sophomores were hurt in these rushes and all complained of lack of gentleness on the part of the Freshmen.

Then came the banner rush on the athletic field against our recent friends—the Sophs. It is needless to tell how it happened that we lost; it is enough to say that by a trick worthy of children yet in a kindergarten, the Sophomores had the flag a few inches across the line when time was called.

Following an ancient custom, we met the Sophomores on Founder's Day in baseball, track, and football, and although they managed, through some phenomenal luck, to win the first two events we made them look like two-year old infants when the really important game of all was played. Football requires strength and brains—things the class of 1905 never possessed, and judging from events never will—yet they hoped to win.

It was about this time that the Sophomores again tried to put up proclamations, hoping perhaps for better luck in this trial than in their former attempt. But once more they were doomed to disappointment. The Bethlehemites indeed were unaware that they had even been posted. Specimens were sold at the Lehigh Supply Bureau as curiosities, the proceeds going to found a hospital for injured Sophomores.

Once more we plunged boldly on in our desire to follow college tradition. "A Freshman picture must be taken," said the seers, and accordingly it was determined that it should be.

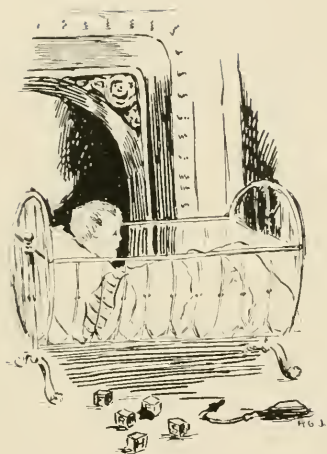

Therefore, one fine morning Dr. Estes was surprised to see the class leave his lecture room rather unceremoniously and adjourn to the open space in front of the Chapel. A few belated Sophomores tried to prevent us from posing properly, only to slink away abashed when threatened with our displeasure. The photograph was taken, the photographer departing by way of the back of Packer Hall. The Sophs, however, with their usual brilliancy, attacked a poor freight driver, imagining he was the photographer, and were severely handled for their pains. "Whom the gods wish to punish they first strike blind," is a good saying and very applicable to the Sophs.

Soon after this we held our Freshman Banquet. The Sophs once more displayed their true disposition: jealous, maddened by defeat, without the money to pay for a banquet themselves, they determined to break ours up. Never, perhaps, did the strategy of the Freshmen shine so brightly as on this occasion. We bribed the porter to let them in the hotel when the affair was almost over. Accordingly, when the inner man was satisfied, the Sophs were let in and we amused ourselves by throwing plates and other articles at them. The Sophs waited for two minutes and then fled. The damage of some five hundred dollars was paid by the Sophs and divided equally between Johnny Morgan and the Freshman class.

Since then we have been left to pursue the even tenor of our ways, growing daily in the favor of the faculty and students.

To our sterling qualities the benighted Sophomores serve as a foil, better displaying our merits. For verily, is not every class superior to all others and therefore do not we, being the latest, over-top them all?

HISTORIAN.

CIVIL ENGINEERS

THE BRIGHTON, MAY 24, 1902

Art. 1—Frankfurter.

Frankfurters were known to the Ancients. It is recorded on recently excavated Babylonian bricks that Nebuchadnezzar ate grass and barked like a ki-yi after eating a catenary of meat marked "Made in Germany."

Art. 2—Sweitzer Kase

Origin unknown. Probably very old. Genesis 4-11-44 says, "And after eating he fell into a troubled sleep and dreamed a dream of many footed beasts and green kine." Being sacred to the gods it was made hol(e)y.

Art. 3—Rye Bread

Rye bread should be of uniform color, free from knots, worm holes and wind cracks. The heaviest is usually the strongest and most desirable for use as projectiles, but when used in fill dams in human channels, the lighter article is preferable. There are in the United States, Canada and Mexico 1313 species; of these, half are found in Bethlehem. Reference: "Baker's Masonry Construction."

Art. 4—Beer

A brown liquid with white foam, hence popular at Lehigh. Has various density and effect. Not used homeopathically.

Art. 5—Rolls

1,000,000 were rolled last month by the cold process in the various mills and furnaces of the U. S., the value of the product being $10,000 or the price asked for two attic rooms in South Bethlehem.

Art. 6—Sody Water

A rare element, little known. Not injurious in small quantities.

Art. 7—Pickles

Pickles are found in various sizes and forms though always conforming to the general curve as given by the equation $mx^2 + xny^{11} - p_3^1 V^{-1}$.

Art. 8—Butter

Tertiary period. Possesses great strength and is sometimes hairy. Reaches great age.

Art. 9—Mustard

Used in the form of plaster. Is adhesive and does not break through jars.

Art. 10—Cigaroots

Samples will be given. Students will test and report all fatalities to Dr. Pollard.

LEHIGH UNIVERSITY CAMPUS
SATURDAY EVENING, JUNE 14, 1902

Synopsis

For nights and days of all one weary Term,
Our souls have scarcely been our own; oppressed
By fear of flunking thee, oh Calculus;
Our life has been a series infinite
Of unknown terms, in which the variables
Were many, and the constant quantity
Most like to be a cipher. Our misery
Has integrated been, day after day,
Without a limit, while what joys we had
Have in the differential been equated

Equal to zero. On Wednesday last we climbed
The Sinusoidal stairway in the Lab.,
Resolved that such of us as there broke from
The chain thou wrapped us with, would gather here,

And with such might as outraged justice gives,
O'erpower thee, when with a revel wild
And glad, as comes but once a life, we would Condemn thee to be burned, and quite consumed
To ashes, whence we trust that never more
Thou wilt return to vex our mortal lives.

Corrections to Dramatis Personæ

* Lambert accuses Leibnitz of having first discovered this monster.

† Read this $e^{-\int_{x_1}^{x_2} dx} \left[\int_e^{\int_{x_1}^{x_2} dx} X_1 \, dx \right. \\ \left. X_2 \, dx + C \right]$

† These are known as Euler's Twins.

Corrections to the Corrections

* We think this is a foxy scheme of Lambert's to shift the blame to Leibnitz.

† Pronounce this "Oiler."

Songs

AIR—"CLEMENTINE."

In a flourishing college, where students abound
 Midst the green spreading chestnuts that cluster around,
 There's a short little Prof. with an evil
 old eye,
 And to-night we will send him straight up to the sky.

CHORUS.

Calculus! Calculus!
 We've got hold of you where you thought you had us.
 Up you go, up on high;
 And you'll burn for the glory of old Lehigh.

Oh, Lambert was born with an evil desire,
 He wanted to set the whole world on fire;
 But he first made the leap, and then took the look:

The only things fired are the leaves of his book.

Cho.

He stuffed it with many abstruse calculations,
 And filled in with Functions and damn
 Integrations,
 Theories, Limits, Differential Equations,
 And thought he'd astonish the new generations.

Cho.

But at last we have conquered; the battle is o'er.
 We are old Lambert's match; in fact we are more,
 And to give us more light in this celebration,
 Old Lambert takes part in a big conflagration.

CHORUS TO LAST VERSE.

Lambert burn. Lambert burn.
 For you've made us sweat, and now you can learn
 In the fire, at the stake,
 It is very much better to give than to take.

—G. B. F., '04.

AIR—"DRILL YE TARRIERS, DRILL."

Oh! Lambert's a fine man all around,
 But he wrote a book that none can down,
 He wrote it good, and he wrote it well
 But he made it harder than the hobbes of hell.

CHORUS.

Then its burn old Lambert burn.
 Burn old Lambert burn,
 For it's work all day, and it's work all night,
 And it's work until the morning light.
 And it's burn old Lambert burn.
 We're done with you and it's mighty plain
 We don't care to run up against you again.
 It's rotten we know to roast one so.
 But it's down to the depth of Hades you go.
 Our exam. is passed, and now we're free
 From the unknown variables x , y and z .
 So bye! bye! Lambert, good by for good.
 Hurry up fellows and pile on the wood.

—W. U. M., '04

AIR—"THE OLD HE CRAB."

The same old Calculus that flunked them
 all before.

The same old Calculus that flunked them
 by the score.

But now the year is ended and he won't flunk any more.

Singing "Calculus you'll die."

Plain differentiation gave 'em all a pain,
 Plain integration flunked 'em all again;
 But Maxima and Minima drove 'em all insane

Singing "Calculus you'll die."

Says I, Mr. Thornburg, as sure as I'm alive;
 Says I, Mr. Calculus, as sure as I'm alive;
 You'll flunk me back into 1905.
 Singing "Calculus you'll die."

A few days ago reports to home were sent.
 My dad wrote to ask me what "E" meant.
 And so I wrote and told him it stood for Excellent.

Singing "Calculus you'll die."

But now his power's broken and there's no more rot to learn,

For we've captured Calculus and shortly
 he will burn.

And we'll ship him down to Hades never
 to return,

Singing "Calculus you'll die."

—J. A. S., '02.

AIR—"FORTUNE TELLING MAN."

Four men, three leau, one stout,
 Were talking all about
 The way they'd stick the Class of 1904.
 They had a foxy plan,
 And they told this short fat man
 To write a book, but now he'll write no more,
 For we have him here to-night
 After an awful fight,
 And we're going to show him we mean
 what we say.
 So its down to Hell you go,
 To the very bottom row,
 Where your bones will lie forever and decay.

CHORUS.

We have at last passed Calculus.
 There's nothing left now that need bother us.
 We are out to-night to raise an awful fuss
 And we won't do a thing to this poor cuss.
 This book at first we feared,
 But our courage soon was reared,
 And we started in to fight with might
 and main.
 To differentiate and then to integrate
 We learn but still it is not very plain.
 The formulas and rules made us often look like fools,
 But we did them or else we would not be
 here;
 And if ever we got stuck we'd turn back
 just for luck
 And the "Corrections" always made it very plain. —D. R. F., '04.

1902 Class Poem

Our race is run, to-day we gather here
To say farewell to that which formed our life ;
To that which armed us for the coming strife ;
Which strengthened us for victory or defeat ;
Which will engage our prime and in our old age cheer ;
Which forms the man and renders life complete.

The pains that have beset us all along
Have vanished in the azure mist of time ;
The road looks smooth to those who've done the climb ;
They only think of flowers along the way,
And pleasant scenes of merriment and song,
While toil's forgotten in the thought of play.

So 'tis with us who now will hasten hence,
And be forgotten soon by every one
(Except Jim Myers, who forgetteth none) ;
We will forget the "flunks" and frowns and rules
Imposed upon us by the slim pretence
'Twas for our good, to make us useful tools.

Then fare you well! your patience we have tried,
But you've tried ours just as much, perhaps ;
We've given and received a few hard raps.
May Heaven keep you all till you desire no more,
And when your last great want is satisfied,
'02 will greet you on the sulphur shore.

—J. AIKEN SIMONS.

WHEN the football season of 1902 is mentioned there come into the mind of every Lehigh student visions of that twenty-second day of November when, for the first time since '98, Lafayette went down to defeat before Lehigh. The innovation of having but one game with Lafayette was made this year, and for that reason our victory was all the more gratifying. To graduates and undergraduates that was the game of the year, victory or defeat in which would determine the success or failure of the entire season. And the score 6-0 in our favor, proclaimed clearly that the season was an unqualified success. But the Lafayette victory was by no means a solitary bright spot upon an otherwise discouraging record, for in every game the team showed up remarkably well, as is evidenced by two hundred and forty-six points to our credit compared with our opponents' fifty-seven. Seven victories, three defeats and one tie, make a record which leaves little to be desired.

Too much praise cannot be given Coach Newton and every member of the squad for their faithful work. In spite of early discouragements they made the season of 1902 one long to be regarded by every Lehigh man with sentiments of pride and gratification.

LEHIGH UNIVERSITY FOOTBALL TEAM

THE baseball season of 1902 is a record of misfortunes and disasters, painful to recount. Before the opening of the season, the prospects, although not as favorable as could have been desired, yet gave promise of a fairly successful year. But the first game resulted in a disheartening defeat, and this inauspicious beginning seemed to discourage everyone at the very outset.

On the southern trip only one game was placed on the credit side of our account, while four defeats were chalked against us. However, the two victories immediately following the southern trip showed decided improvement, and gave the team and its supporters cause for encouragement. But this improvement failed to continue, and the remainder of the season was an unbroken record of defeats.

The members of the team cannot justly be censured for the failure of the season. Taylor, our best twirler, was disqualified early in the season, and this so seriously crippled the pitching force that thereafter victory was impossible.

The material was not in college, and although the coach and captain did the best they could with the means at hand, it was easily seen that their efforts were hopeless. That familiar phrase, "circumstances beyond our control," explains truly the cause of the disastrous season. More than that, nothing can be said.

AS IN the past several years the team lost a number of good players, necessitating the development of new men to fill their places.

Mr. Barlow, who had so ably coached the team for the previous two seasons, was again secured. Although he did the best he could with the material available, so many new men had to be developed that it was out of the question to produce a championship team.

The season opened with two defeats, the games with Hobart and U. of P., both being lost by narrow margins. These, however, were followed by an easy victory over C. C. N. Y. But the game with Johns Hopkins demonstrated our weakness in team work, and we were defeated by the score of 9 to 1. From this time on the men improved wonderfully in working together, and defeated both Stevens and Columbia. Indeed, if the form displayed in these two contests had been present from the beginning of the season, we would have had strong chances of landing the banner.

On the whole, the season of 1902 compares favorably with the last two seasons. As nearly every member of the team is in college this spring, a marked improvement over the records of the last few years should surely be made.

LEHIGH UNIVERSITY LACROSSE TEAM

DURING the past three years a gradual improvement in track work has been made, and the season of 1902 was the most successful ever known at Lehigh. True, we have but one victory placed to our credit, but as this was over Lafayette it more than atones for our two defeats. This victory, the first we had gained from Lafayette for a number of years, showed beyond doubt the marked progress we have made in this line of work in the past two seasons.

Of course, it is always difficult to build up any branch of athletics to which for many years only slight attention has been paid. Such a task requires time. Success, however, is slowly crowning our efforts, and the inducement offered by the "L" is a valuable incentive, and productive of good results. Two records were broken in the Lafayette meet, the pole vault and the broad jump.

The past season, therefore, was one giving great encouragement to all interested in track athletics.

THIS season the gymnasium team was heavily handicapped. At the beginning of the year the prospects were not encouraging, as several members of last year's team did not return to college. These men were unusually good, and had been the chief reliance of the team for several seasons. Hence, their loss was quite severely felt.

There was a fair number of new men out for the team, but the majority had little experience and needed development. Under the able coaching of the physical director, these men gradually rounded into form, and for a time everyone interested in the team felt highly encouraged. But the illness of Captain Lord, coming about a month before the opening of the season, was a serious setback, as he was the most experienced and best man on the team. The other members of the team, however, did not allow this to discourage them, but continued steadily at work, and in the exhibition with Rutgers and the meet with Haverford made a very creditable showing.

As nearly all the men who took part in the meets are underclassmen and will return to college in the fall, the outlook for next season is more encouraging than it has been for some time.

BASKETBALL has gained a prominent place in Lehigh Athletics, and the past season showed conclusively that our team should be given a high rank among Eastern colleges. U. of P., Jefferson Medical College, and F. and M., were defeated with no great trouble, and the game with Lafayette also resulted in an easy victory. In fact, Lehigh's players were undoubtedly superior to every team they met, with the exception of the professional Wilkes-Barre team.

In one respect the team was unfortunate, namely, in not having a full schedule. This was caused by the manager leaving college and the necessity of electing at a late date another man to fill his place. Everything possible was then done to arrange a complete schedule, but owing to the delay it was impossible to do so. And even several teams with whom games had been arranged cancelled them, thus further reducing our schedule. This fact, however, by no means marred the success of the season, for in the games that were played the showing of the team demonstrated that had there been more games the majority would have undoubtedly been Lehigh victories.

Apart from this matter of the schedule, the season was a marked success and gave promise of even brighter things next year.

THE LEHIGH TRIUMVIRATE

Ten Years Out

The Freshman has his playthings and the Senior has his joys,
The citizen of sixty-odd has won or lost the prize ;
The infant and the veteran are both devoid of fears ;
But what about the college man who owns to thirty years ?

Was he Lafayette or Lehigh ? It's all the same to most,
His higher education is a memory, not a boast ;
Say " Junior Mathematics " and he's deaf in both his ears,
This rusty, ignorant old boy, the " grad " of thirty years.

He stops to take account of stock and figure up his gains,
He asks what assets he can show for all his toils and pains ;
Has he thrown " cold hands " with Destiny (as Kipling said) for beers ?
Has Fate turned up a bob-tailed flush, to match his thirty years ?

One thing, at least, he comes to see, is settled past debate,
He is a workman, rather than a college graduate ;
Who tries to make a sheep-skin serve, after these thirty years,
Shows to his fellow-men a pair of long and furry ears.

Perhaps we're treated, on the whole, about as we deserve,
And those who take the tangent who were meant to take the curve,
And litter up the right-of-way with promising careers,
Have set the switches wrong themselves through all these thirty years.

PAUL M. PAINE, '91.

IN THE following brief paragraphs the author, himself a skilled observer of the diseases mentioned and having at some time or other suffered from many of them personally—directly or indirectly—will endeavor to give first, a short but efficient method of diagnosis; second, the most approved modern treatment; and third, the care and nursing required, if any, to perfect the cure and render the patient immune for the future. The latter is sometimes difficult or impossible, but there are a few cases where a judicious tapering-off of the treatment and a careful system of foxy but vigilant espionage will accomplish wonders.

FRESHMANIA

One of the commonest and most easily spotted of all. Usually attacks the victim immediately upon his arrival in the town, and is particularly virulent in cases that have just graduated from a military school. The patient has a very aggressive manner about his person, and is apt to affect gay and offensively sporty garb. The younger he is, the worse the attack, but the more easily cured. He has a tendency to talk a great deal with his mouth, and is ready to advise anybody who is unable to escape, from Jim Myers to the Junior Class President. He will purchase all sorts of college jewelry upon slight provocation, and ship it off to maidens in that part of the map which was responsible for his origin, and receive in return divers gaudy and flaunting flags, banners and pillows, in every possible and impossible combination of brown and white. He will do—but what will he not do? To proceed with the Treatment.—Begin with small but steady and frequent doses of snubbing and indifference, mixed half and half. A little later post up notices in the high places, emblazoning thereon his name in a bright and vivid green, with any unpleasant personalities you can remember or invent. As it is always wise to set a thief to catch a thief, and on the principle of similia similibus curantur, put a large and well-conditioned Sophomore next, preferably one who had suffered severely from the same trouble the year before. Finally, see that he becomes a member of some fraternity where there are plenty of upper classmen who need a boy to shine shoes, press trousers, loan evening clothes and go around the corner of a Saturday night for milk or cider—in season. A rapid and complete cure is promised in all but the most hopeless cases, and for these we know of nothing but the Allentown Jail or a course at the U. of P., where anything goes.

FIENDITIS

A stubborn and dangerous affection. Deep-seated, hard to eradicate, and highly infectious amongst a certain predisposed class. Used to take its worst form in members of the Philadelphia High School gang, being universally considered incurable when it has seized one of these wise, luckless and bespectacled youths in its iron grip. The symptoms and diagnosis are like axioms, only more so, being as self-evident as the peanut-shells on Hamilton Street. And when there are no more peanut-shells in Allentown, no beer sold in Bethlehem, and dividends are paid on Lehigh Valley shares, then will it be worth while to cure the Fiend of his Fienditis; for at present finis non coronat opus, und das ist ja wahr, sag' ni't, landsman?

POKERHOEA

This is an apparently innocent malady, and its diagnosis in the early stage is extremely difficult. Usually by the time the conscientious M.D.

is sure of the disease the patient is so far gone, morally, mentally and even physically, that a cure is hardly worth the trouble. Still, for the benefit of those who may wish to attempt the salvation of a friend who was a pretty decent fellow before he fell, a method of procedure will be outlined that the author has found of benefit in all but the most hopeless of cases. One of the first symptoms is a desire to be abroad in the wee sma' hours, accompanied by fitful sleep during the daytime, during which the victim mutters incoherently of "jack-pots," "ante," "kitty," "flush," "see you," and similar trash. He may have been fond of the ladies formerly; now he renounces them utterly. He may have been bibulously inclined; now he swears off, or if previously temperate, he does the tank act. Soon he begins a stealthy course of postponing payment on all accounts he can. This starts with the laundryman, and continues the whole gamut until even his frat. dues are forgotten, and every friend he once possessed crosses the street when he sees him coming, or swears he is broke if unable to escape otherwise. Unless speedily saved by nothing short of a miracle, his finish is now very near, as it is only a question of days before he is taken

"Them"

"He renounces them utterly"

home by an irate parent. If the latter is wise he will set young hopeless to digging turnips or sweeping out the back room of a barber shop. I doubt if he would be any good at this, but it might be well to give him a chance.

Treatment.—Suppose we have caught our patient in the early stages. He has been dodging the laundryman about six weeks, but has as yet made no open attempt to evade payment to any ordinarily honest man. He is nervous and abstracted, but may yet be found at home one or two nights a week, and still confesses a sneaking fondness for the dear girls. Play upon this last all you can, and if possible enlist the services of some especially shrewd and attractive member of the sex to help you out. One of the sweetly-innocent, fluffy, silk-lined, church-going sort is the most useful in such an emergency, only keep your weather eye out on your own fate while you're at it, for this species is dangerous to the unwary. Drop in on the unfortunate at any old time and keep him amused. Even play ping pong with him if he insists, for is not a fellow-student's career at stake? Tell him casually about Jack Sporticus, '94, who got pinched running a crooked game at Coney Island, and is now "up" for five years. Last, but not least, ring in the happy-home story—the proud father and loving mother, and all the rest. Let him copy your lab. reports, sit beside you in exams, and share your private pony or your German dictionary; but above all keep him honest, and let him see how despicable is the man who has for-muke A, B, C, and D on his cuff and refuses to divide. Make it a labor of love, and don't give up the ship; but if you find he will play the game, throw reserve to the winds, and sit down with him some rainy night and skin him out of the shirt on his back, thus letting him see how mighty slim his chances are when he gets up against an expert, and incidentally recouping yourself for the valuable time you have already wasted trying to make a man out of him. If this doesn't settle him nothing will, and you can now let him go with a clear conscience.

CAPUT MAGNUM

There are two forms of this ailment, the figurative and the literal. With the latter we have nothing to do. The local M.D. or the corner druggist can fix you up a great deal quicker than we can, and what do we know about such things, anyhow? Nothing at all, and the man who says we do is a liar, and does not know Wuerzburger from Muench-ener. To proceed: the victim of the true Caput Magnum is generally too young to be strictly responsible. Some authorities favor letting him alone on the chance that he will outgrow it; but the risk is very great. Others say that he should be steadily kicked about two hours a day. We are fully able to sympathize with these gentlemen, and have seen some cases (usually in combination with Freshmania) where we did not hesitate to rigidly follow up this treatment. But for ordinary cases, where there is nothing worse than an exaggerated opinion of the importance of the patient in his own eyes, and he has become convinced that he knows a big majority of things knowable, we recommend the following infallible

— "rigidly follow up this treatment."

Treatment.—Secure a job for the patient in any commercial establishment whatsoever, at exactly the salary he is worth to the concern taking him on its pay-roll. At the end of not more than six weeks nor less than three, let him come back to college, and we will back our professional record against Dick Cunningham's shop-visit shoes that a radical, wholesome and absolute cure has resulted.

BUMMITIC FEVER

A troublesome and annoying thing to all friends of the patient, though the latter suffers very little, if any, the particularly thick skin that usually accompanies the malady making him proof against everything but machine guns and Cascarets. It develops slowly but steadily, and its course is readily traced by the most careless and unskilled observer. The first symptom is a desire to quit buying matches, as he finds his friends generally have a supply, and are not at first unwilling to let him help himself. "If matches, why not other things?" reasons this misguided youth; and he tries them on cigarettes. His friends now scent danger, but they are still incredulous, and our subject goes from bad to worse rapidly. Neckties and collars come next, then shoes, socks, shirts, underwear, and finally good coin and greenbacks. About this time the most skeptical are convinced; but what might have been nipped in the bud has now attained unto such a strength that a long and exciting campaign must be waged if the patient is to be saved to a life of decency and kept out of politics. Here we have a case where mercy of any sort is a complete waste of time and breath. He will listen quietly to a talk of two hours on the error of his ways for the sake of touching you for a V or a dime, just as he estimates your softness and the elasticity of your leg. What he does with the checks from home nobody knows, for he always is broke, and he owes everybody in sight. I am supposing, of course, that he is not a Poker hoea victim, as these awful creatures have already been dealt with.

Treatment.—Adopt a threatening and overbearing attitude, and let all others who are acquainted with the patient do likewise. Refuse to lend him anything whatsoever—not a newspaper, not a stamp, not a paper for the makin's. Call a meeting of all creditors who have a bona fide claim, get the subject before you, and give him just two months to square everybody, before sending a letter (already written—you can have it there to read aloud to him, and make it good and strong) to his stern father, who, strangely enough, is invariably the sort of man not to look upon his son's misconduct with leniency. This is one of the cases requiring the most assiduous perseverance, and a patient apparently cured is apt to fall back with no warning at all. It is a safe rule to lay down that not once for the remainder of his course should he be loaned anything, from a dinner coat to a tooth-brush. College brotherhood and good fellowship are excellent things, but like the pearls they told us about in Sunday-school, we must not cast them before the Hebrew pawnbroker and look to get our money's worth.

GALLANTRIC SWELLING

A distressing ailment peculiar to the young and unsophisticated. Especially severe in cases newly arrived from the South and West, but apt to tackle a man from Boston occasionally. The symptoms are a desire to rival the lilies of the field in gorgeousness of apparel, a cockey and self-reliant manner in the presence of ladies, and a deep and profound erudition on everything pertaining to the sex in general, and to Susie, Nellie, or Minnie in particular.

Treatment.—Nothing easier. Call in your fair friend again. Not the same one as before; she wouldn't do at all, this time. Get a trim, dapper, tailor-made little miss, who loves a joke for its own sake, and wouldn't think of falling in love with a man for worlds—not for the next four years, at any rate. Let her have full details of the case, and she will do the rest. She will do it up brown, and the patient into the bargain, and when she gets through with him he won't be able to see himself in the mirror without a ladder to climb up on, and this new specimen of her kind will have bred into his soul such a hearty and wholesome respect for the rest of them that he will drop the Don Juan rôle like a hot potato, and eschew the darlings for the rest of his Lehigh existence. Of course, nobody knows what will happen to him after he graduates; lots of us do things then that we were very sure we wouldn't when we left the town, but it's all right if you get the right sort, and if you don't, you've nobody to blame but yourself, for Lord knows we gave you enough advice and sage counsel on the subject while we had you under our wing!

—W. S. A., '96.

“The Charge of the Light Brigade”

The Reformation of Biddle

THE weekly meeting of the Delta Alpha Mu had been over for some hours, but a group of the brethren in the back-parlor, library or smoking-room—for it went by one name as often as the other—showed no signs of breaking up. The atmosphere had arrived at that state of blue density, commonly supposed to be capable of being thrown out of the window in chunks, but the argument went briskly on between puffs, and seemed about as near completion as it had the week—or the month—before. Figuratively speaking, Parker had the floor; literally, he had the morris-chair, one corner of the table and the head of the couch. Parker's home was somewhere along the "East'n Sho'," and he spoke with the great conviction that comes of being twenty-one and a member of the Senior Class.

"Well, I don't know what you all 'll think about it, but I reckon I've got a scheme to cure him—if he's curable. Anyhow, 'twouldn't do him any harm if it didn't, and ther'd be no end of spo't carryin' it out."

"Hand it out then, Col.: 'desperate diseases,' you know, and even a prescription of yours won't be thrown down without a fair trial at this stage of the game. He's my own cousin, if I do say so as shouldn't, and I've got a fatherly concern for his welfare. And if his governor ever found out the error of his son's ways, you bet your Uncle Bob wouldn't get out with a whole skin."

Briefly, the case was this: the preceding year, Albert Edward Biddle of London, England, usually known as "H. R. H.," had been sent by his fond parents to "The States" for the purpose of acquiring a technical education, and incidentally a little American "get-there." His cousin, Robert Richmond, (commonly "Bodbick") of Philadelphia, being then an upperclassman at Lehigh, thither came Albert Edward, where he was soon installed as a fellow-member in Bodbick's particular frat., and after he had learned a few points on U. S. colonial history, and not to call all Americans "Yankees," he was voted a very good fellow, and treated accordingly. Being considerably older than most of his classmates, he made most of his friends among the upper classes, and having made them, continued to hold them by his unfailing tact, generosity and cheerfulness. All had gone well for the first year; but no sooner was Biddle a Sophomore than he began to make trouble.

He had all the Englishman's impersonal and genuine joy over a row of any kind, just for the sake of the scrap; he would give—and take—a daily black eye for the pure fun of the operation; and he was as cheerfully impartial and democratic in his choice of antagonists as anyone could wish. From Schmittbergenstein, the cop and Prof. P. O'Rourke of the So. Bethlehem "Amateur Association of Physical Sculpture Experts" (to quote the prof.) to Van Swelter, the senior president, Biddle had slugged, fenced and wrestled himself up, and though his record had not been less broken than his head, he was still ready to accommodate all comers with alacrity.

It was in the first term that he met Miss Mamie Gerneben, of Allentown. With his usual energy (when not at his books) he paid assiduous court, and his suit was smiled upon by the winsome Mamie, to the great chagrin of many local beaux, and not a few of his fellow-students. As the year went on, so did Biddle's case, and now, in the spring, he was so completely enraptured that everything else had to wait while he did homage at her shrine. Cuts, conditions, interviews with Prex, stern expostulations from his frat-brothers, and even threats from the once absolute Bobdick—all failed of their purpose. Albert Edward Biddle would "gang his ain gait," and in a last desperate effort to save him in spite of himself, the above mentioned meeting of the "executive council" had been held. Hence, the close attention paid to "Col." Parker's scheme (or prescription) as he proceeded to unfold it to the ears of his fellow-conspirators.

"I reckon you all know how H. R. H. loves a mix-up of any kind?" A silent but feeling assent was nodded, most of the company having experienced whereof they spoke. "Well, then, I guess he's had a go at pretty nigh everybody 'round y'ere except Mike Fallon. Mike's a roller down at the steel mill, and I got acquainted with him when I was takin' the Junior shop-visits. Fact is, only for Mike I'd never got off the condition I had on that. Used to come 'round to my room nights, and put me next on a lot of stuff I never could make head or tail of 'till I met him. Cost me a few cases of Uhl's, but it paid. Now Mike's a scrapper from Scrapville; one of the sort that loves a fight just like H. R. H., an' goes into it with a happy smile that lasts clear through. He used to be quite a pug out in Pittsburgh, but he's savin' up to get married, or some such foolishness, and nobody in these parts is onto his record. I'll get hold of Michael, explain the case, an' see if I can't persuade him to help us out."

Broad grins and other signs of appreciation and understanding greeted this announcement, and after Bobdick's pouch had gone the rounds, the speaker continued, waxing eloquent and even dramatic.

"We'll let on to the Britisher that he has a rival, an' get him good'n worked up. Then we'll have Mike challenge him to fight, an' the loser is to renounce all chance at the young lady, an' go way back and sit down. H. R. H. 'll take him up, hands down—an' there you are!"

General approval rewarded the foxy Southerner, only Hammond expressing a doubt. "What if he licks your champion; wouldn't we be worse off than ever?" "Don't you believe it; Mike 'll polish him off worse'n his people got it in '76, an' it won't do him a bit of harm, more'n a couple of new black eyes, an' Lord knows, he ain't had any now for a couple o' months, an' must be gettin' uncomfortable without 'em. And what you criticisin' for, anyhow? You haven't anything better to propose, an' you're only a classical, to boot!"

This crushing retort had its effect, and the discomfited Hammond relapsed into silence and a fresh cigarette.

* * * * *

"What sort of a jolly are you chaps givin' me? Say, Parker, you think you're deuced clever, but you're off for once. Tell you there isn't another sail in sight; she doesn't want any more than she has—and that's your 'umble servant, sir.—' Wouldn't tell me if there were?—oh, come off;—but, I say, now straight, d'ye think she'd be that artful? I'm not so very much up to American girls, y'know, but still—gad! if I thought so, I'd put him to sleep, whoever he is—Maybe I couldn't?—just give us a chance, old man, that's all! I don't like to be 'had,' any more than you would, and by a Yank—beg pardon, American,—at that—Well, so long—I'm off to the burg, and maybe I'll have some information for you when I get home."

* * * * *

The postman had dropped his packet into the box in the hall, and its contents were being absorbed in comparative silence. The only sounds in evidence were the click of billiard balls, and the touching requests for "the makings," when Albert Edward Biddle burst forth.

"What the deuce d'ye think of this? Just allow me to read the astounding missive in my hand :

'SO. BETHLEHEM, May 7th, 189—

'MR. A. E. BIDDLE.

'Sir:—Whereas you are keeping company with a young lady in Allentown whose name I need not mention here, and whereas I am doing the same thing whenever you give me a chance to do so, and whereas you are a student and worse yet an Englishman, and only fooling with her, therefore I being in earnest and wanting to marry the lady if she will have me,—and I think she will if you get out of my way,—I hereby warn you to keep away from her house and home, also that part of Allentown bounded by Penn, 8th, Union, and 9th Streets, from this day forth, under penalty of being soundly thrashed by me : or if this do not meet with your approving thereof, I will fight you at any time and place, the winner to have the lady, and the loser to keep away from the place as above stated, and I have the honour to be

'Yours very truly,

'PERCY MONTAGUE.'

'Address care Gen'l Delivery, So. Bethlehem.'

"Wouldn't that dislocate you? The beastly cheek of the man! And blessed if he didn't spell honour with the u! Certainly no gentleman, though he has an excellent name. I say, Bobdick, what's a fellow to do?"

"Well, Albert Edward, you know you're in the great U. S. at present, and it's the usual thing here for one gentleman to fight another when he's invited. Considering your record in the past I don't really think you're afraid, but if you are, why, of course——"

"Afraid? Just give me a chance, that's all! Why, the infamous cad, did he really think I wouldn't give him what he wants? I believe he's a liar, for I know she hasn't any such friends, or I would have known about him, of course; still, you never can tell about American girls; my father says so, and he married one, and he ought to know! I'll sit right down and write this fellow——."

"You'll do nothing of the sort, it wouldn't be correct—nor American. I'll go and see this fellow, as your—ah—friend, you know, and he'll refer me to a friend of his, and we'll do it all up according to—to—Hoyle I think it is, and all you'll have to do is to keep still and wait, and of course, stay away from Allentown in the meantime, that's the law of nations on the subject, as I needn't tell you. Then, when it's all arranged, we'll have a couple of the fellows go along to see fair play, and I suppose he'll do the same; that's the correct thing, good form, you know, and we'll have the scrap"—(Bobbick snacked his lips in anticipation)—"and when it's all over, of course whoever gets the little end will be a gentleman, and renounce the—ah—young lady forever; otherwise"—but an awful look was the only alternative presented.

A little further argument overwhelmingly convinced the belligerent but puzzled swain of the propriety of this procedure, and Bobbick departed mysteriously on his errand of finding the challenger. Despite the meagreness of the address he returned in a surprisingly short time, with a suspiciously complete outline of the details. The party were to assemble on the Athletic Field at sharp midnight on the following Friday, when it promised to be bright moonlight. Bobbick, Parker and "Doc." Blumenbran, a local M. D. with more popularity than income, were to escort Biddle, while Mr. Percy Montague was in charge of Bernard Salisbury, Patrick Chamberlain and Michael Lansdowne. Biddle's face wore a puzzled look as he scanned this list, and he started some reminiscences about the names sounding familiar, but speedily forgot all about it in the details of scientific and modern pugilism that were poured on him from all sides.

At 11.30 on the following Friday evening, behold the hero and his backers, in old clothes and sweaters, crossing the New St. bridge. A half hour later, a tableau out in front of the grand-stand, the gladiators in the act of shaking hands, Parker with a bicycle lamp guardedly illuminating the dial of a stop watch, he had borrowed from the mech'l lab., (the speed indicator was in his pocket, but not in use) and overhead a glorious full moon in a cloudless sky. "Time!" shouts the redoubtable "Col.," and the band broke forth.

* * * * *

"Ye'll promise now, on yer word as a gentleman? Ye'll renounce all claim and interest in wan 5 fut 3 inch gurl, weighin' jist wan hunder an' twinty-sivin pounds in her stockin-fate, an' no questions asked? Mamie Gurngayben be name, noineteen years be age, and livin' at No.—Penn Shitreet, in the burro' o' Allentown, to wit, be all these prisints? (Faith, he has the prisints all right—all but prisince o' mind, for the prisint!)—And hereby do yez ploight me yer troth, and ye're all t' th' good if ye are an Englishman,—t' hell wid the quane, just the same—here's me hand, 'till death do us part, and yi'll live hereafter a godly, righteous, and sober life, so hilp me St. Patrick and Tiddy Rosefelt—have I the sintiments correct, Mr. Parker? "

Thus ended, at just 12.07 A. M., the memorable turning point in the college career of Albert Edward Biddle, Esq., late of London, England, now dragging a chain through the forests of Wisconsin, a deputy-sub-assistant engineer for the great L. M. & N. He was as good as his agreement, and generously extended the contract to take in the whole of Allentown, at the suggestion of his loving guide, philosopher, and friend, "Col." Hamilton Carroll Parker, of the Eastern Shore. The story came to me partly from one source and partly from another, for such things do occasionally leak out, even in "frats.,"—and the worthy Dr. Blumenbrau is wont to wax confidential, if you can afford the expense of getting him mellowed—by no means a trifle. The story was verified and completed upon the last occasion of my meeting Mr. A. E. Biddle, C. E., when he told me that, now he had had some five or six years to think it over, he did not believe that Mr. Percy Montague was entitled to the possession of the proud name he bore—at least, he had never inherited it, for he had met several Montagues in England, and not one of them so misused and maltreated the mother-tongue as did his late antagonist. Furthermore, he added darkly, he was beginning to suspect that his cousin Bobdick and Col. Parker knew more about that scrap than they pretended to at the time, though why they should have deliberately got him into a fight and let him get the best licking he ever had, was beyond his comprehension, anyhow!

When they said, " You have wheels,"
He replied, " So it feels,

The Revised Version

When Reformer Jonah sojourn'd in the whale,
He unfolded this extravagant tale
To that Ancient Son of Ages,
Pedigreed in musty pages,
And proportioned on an ante-Eden scale :

“ When my father was a youth of ninety-three,
He went fishing in a long-forgotten sea,
With an unused ocean cable
And a derrick-pole from Babel
That was formerly a California tree.

“ And he fished till he was ninety-seven past
Catching whales and other small-fry at each cast,
And the sea receded greatly
From the place it had been lately—
He was hauling out those saurians so fast.

“ Then one day, in March, I think, he got a bite,
And he pulled with all his pre-historic might ;
But he had tremendous trouble
For the pole was bending double
While that unused ocean cable drew up tight.

“ So he braced his feet against a mountain side,
And the more the fish pulled back, the more he tried,
Till a dex'trous sidewise motion
Brought that fish out from the ocean—
What ? He told me this himself before he died.

"That Ichthy'saurus flapped a ten-mile flap—
Here's a photograph of it, and of my pap;
And the sea, my daddy stated,
Dropped in the hole vacated,
And they subsequently took it off the map.

"Do you swallow that?" said Jonah to the whale,
Who answered negatively, growing pale;
"But you have," said that ex-Pounder
Of the doctrine, "for, you flounder,
When you swallowed me I brought along the tale!"

Then a heaving shook the bulwarks of the whale,
And out shot Mister Jonah and his tale;
And that Ancient Son of Ages,
Pedigreed in musty pages,
Shudders yet at his experience as a jail.

The Best Issue of All

YOUNGER brother editors of the EPITOME know as well as any of their readers that the worst thing about making a promise is the necessity of keeping it. When they have been out of Lehigh for seventeen years they will probably be wiser than I and will make no promises for the 1921 EPITOME. If they do, it is altogether probable that they will have a more burning message for the college generation yet unborn than this note—it can hardly be called a letter—has to carry.

There is one thing, however, which every man who has been through college has to find out for himself; and if it is an old story, it will bear re-telling. It is the truth—the absolute truth—what the older men tell the younger: that they will never have a better time than they can have in college. The younger men try to look as if they believed it, but they really don't. It makes no difference that their own experience has shown the Sophomore year to be really no more delightful than the Freshman, and so on to the end of the college chapter. There is something in the prospect of a piece of parchment which you expect to frame, but in reality will leave rolled up in a bureau drawer; there is something in the hope of having your name in the list of the Alumni Association, which must produce what the alienists call a "delusion of grandeur."

As a matter of fact, there is very little grandeur about it. Just as in college, there is afterwards a certain amount of work to be done—with the important difference that if it is not done, the resulting penalty, though perhaps less immediately obvious, is much greater. The proportion of "beer and skittles," or whatever you choose to call the irresponsible pleasures of life, to corned beef and office hours, grows astonishingly one-sided. On which side the increase comes, it does not take long to find out.

But all this is not to deplore the years that come after college. They are good years, just as the four at Lehigh were. The fact is that the boy of twenty and the man of forty are singularly apt to be in the places where they belong. The boy would probably make a muddle of the man's work and the man content with the boy's exercise and play is not the man his college training ought to have made him. In a word, the best time of all is pretty sure to be the time in which one finds one's self. At all events, it is the only time we can mould to our own ends; and if it is not the best, it becomes our business to make it so. To this end the most venerable graduate can find no better paths than those which are equally open to his grandson—honest work, healthy play, true friendship, and warm affection.

It did not enter my head that I was going to preach a sermon. If I have done so, I am sure there are Lehigh men who will forgive me as a victim of hereditary tendencies.

M. A. DEWOLFE HOWE, '86.

The Lover

Said the Junior, with tears in his eyes,
 "Yes, the lady, I know is a preyes,
 But, alas!—I can see
 That she isn't for me
 Till my income's a weightier seyes.

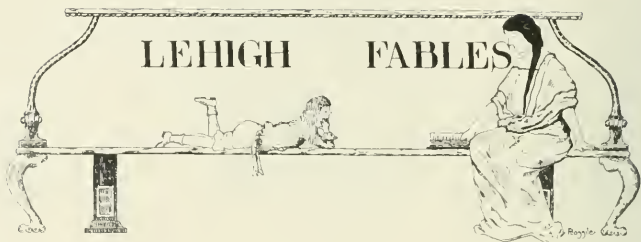

"She's not an extravagant dear
 On clothes, or on hats, or such gear,
 But know, all ye folk,
 J. P. M. would be brok
 In keeping my darling in bear."

The Door of Woe

The Door of Woe is a direful place
 And is known both far and near,
 Wherever the Lehigh students are
 It is spoken of with fear.
 To a dread and dismal realm it leads—
 The home of the King of Math,
 (His name I dare not mention here
 Through fear of the Faculty's wrath)
 Whene'er one enters its portals dark
 A prayer for his soul ascends,
 For woe to him who from any cause
 The dreaded Ruler offends.
 Better for him had he ne'er been born,
 Than to go therein and say,
 "No, I don't quite understand that point,"
 Or, "I'm not prepared to-day."
 The fate in store for that luckless youth
 Is too awful to portray;
 He has a taste of that region warm
 Where we all may go, some day.
 The names of victims—a countless host—
 Are posted upon this door;
 Before it many a tear is shed,
 And many a cuss word swore.
 Yes, the Door of Woe's a gloomy place,
 A Tart'rous, sulphurous hole,
 And he who enters, devoutly prays
 "Lord, have mercy on my soul."

YOUNG Blood of a rural Hamlet, having exhausted the limited Opportunities for wild and wicked Dissipation on his Native Soil, longed, like the Man in the Book, for more worlds to Conquer. After long deliberation he decided to be Real Sporty and become one of those admired and envied Members of Society known as College Men. He perused numerous Catalogues, and finally selected for the scene of his future Operations A. Packer's Incubator, stranded near some very Muddy Rapids.

By dint of racking Study and Application he contrived to enter the Class of Nixy Nix with only five Conditions out of a Possible eight—a Record in which he took great Pride. At the End of a Week he had adapted himself to his new Surroundings and begun to Hit up his Pace.

He made the pleasing Discovery that his Choice was Extremely happy, and the Openings for the Diversions of which he Made a Specialty were Infinite. The Inhabitants of the Burg were compelled to Imbibe colored and exhilarating Liquids, as the only Substitute for the drinking Water, which was chuck full of three-eyed, thousand-legged Dinguses, dangerous and Deadly to Health. This suited the Conditioned Freshman to a T. He conceived a Holy Horror of such Germ-ridden Water, and consumed other beverages to avoid Certain Death.

The beginning of his Career was Modest. On his first Night up to the Stadt he punished only Ten Steins, with several Mixed for Chasers, made the 12.10 Car and showed up at Recitations the next Morning.

But the next Time he made a Heavier Plunge. At the stroke of Eleven he stopped Counting the Mugs, gently lapsed into a Semi Comatose Condition, and last Cars, college and similar Themes faded from Memory. He had Struck his Gait.

Toot after Toot of the High Lonesome Variety followed one another like Relay Runners. He became a Night Hawk and a Swigger. He spent his nights in tasting Mums Extra Dry as a spicer with Schlitz's, in Company with the Allentown Birds, and saw the Dawn of Morning in a Hypnotic Trance. All spare Cash went for Drugs warranted-to-kill-the-Dark-Brown-Taste. Once a week he would Recover sufficiently to wander into a Lecture, just to Show an Interest in his Work.

But, as the Preacher says, there is an Ending to all Things.

The Faculty got next, and felt it their Duty to inform his devoted Parents of the Status Quo. A loving Epistle soon reached the Sporty Freshman, gently Praying his return Home, and to Accelerate this desired End, all Remittances were to Quit.

So, after four Months of strenuous College Life, the young Blood departed, though Loath to Go.

"My Abode has been Short," said he, "but my Pace has been Swift. I have crowded more Events of an exhilarating Nature and seen more of Lively Life in four months than the Greasy Grind will in Years. In Sooth, I have reaped great Profit from my College Career."

Moral: Better five Years of Poker than a Lifetime of Croquet.

—T.

II

Once upon a time there graduated from Lehigh a class which held two young men of widely different Reputations and Acquirements. The First was a Scholar, and was the Delight of the Faculty and an Ornament to Society. He was never known to Flunk, and the only Unknown Quantity in his experience of four years was an Absence Mark. Great Things were prophesied for Him, and he was believed to Share largely in this Idea himself. The Other Fellow was a Bird, and Surprised everyone by Managing to Graduate at all. How he did it was never satisfactorily explained, even though a Lengthy Investigation was made by Mr. Ashbaugh himself. His Reputation was at a discount in Bethlehem, from the Mothers of promising Daughters to Barkeepers who had trusted him for Drinks, and he was Popularly Supposed to be on the Steep and Slippery Path that leadeth to the Demnition Bow-wows.

Of course, it is Up to Us to see what happened to these Two. Perhaps you think the First came unto Great Glory and placed a Hundred Per Cent. Heat Engine on the market, or discovered the Fatal Food that Annihilates the Booze-Germ, or words to that effect, whilst the Other Fellow was Landed in Jail for Life or elected to Congress from Delaware. No! such was not at all the Case. Then, say you, the first fell down and became the author of a Math Book, whilst the Other Fellow won undying Fame and Laurels by Reforming and Leading a Virtuous Life and Profitable in the Brewing of a nectar which left no Head, and was prescribed by all the best Physicians and Contained—but still you are Away Off; for the First did nothing worse nor better than becoming a Teacher at a Place where he still holds Forth, and that was Ten years ago, but he has had Two Raises in that time of $1.00 per month, Each; and the Other Fellow has been getting jobs and chucking them about Twelve Times per year, when he Wasn't Fired when they Saw him Coming, and has bettered himself to the Tune of $24.00 per year during all These Moons. All of which Goes to Prove that, if

A Setting Hen never Gets Fat, neither does a Rolling Stone Accumulate Much Moss.

—W. S. A., '96.

Did You?

Say, did you ever stop and think
How funny it would be,
If everything was opposite
From what we really see?
If Jim should be our President,
Hygiene our hardest toil,
And college men should be forbid
To burn the midnight oil.
Athletics would begin to thrive
Beneath the watchful eye
Of him whose dom'nant rule we know
'Tis useless to defy.
Perhaps there'd really be a chance
That cops would be our friends,
And one could find his classmates there
When chapel he attends.
Then Calculus would be a "cinch,"
No fees would be allowed,
And on the cars to Allentown
There'd never be a crowd.
But if all this should come to pass
Would life be such a bore,
That we would wish for everything
Back as it was before?

—J. C. S., '02.

The Little God Visits Lehigh

Young Cupid on mischief full intent,
His wily steps toward Bethlehem bent :
Wandering round in search of prey,
He entered Lehigh's fair gateway.

Securely he hid behind a tree,
And his shafts prepared in fiendish glee :
Calmly for his victims waited,
Who, he knew, were surely fated.

There entered first Professor Shober,
With looks at once both grave and sober ;
He clasped his hand above his heart
When Cupid pierced him with a dart.

Then came Doc Whitman, tall and stately,
Thinking of English, written lately,
He turned quite pale and gave a start
As Cupid struck him o'er the heart.

Soon came one who was wreathed in smiles,
All unsuspecting of Cupid's wiles,
But that young sprite, with aim so true,
Pierced " Bobby " Heck right through and through.

Next stalked one who was swinging a cane,
And gazing ahead with calm disdain ;
Cupid smiled grimly, drew his bow,
Struck " Herr " Gauss a terrible blow.

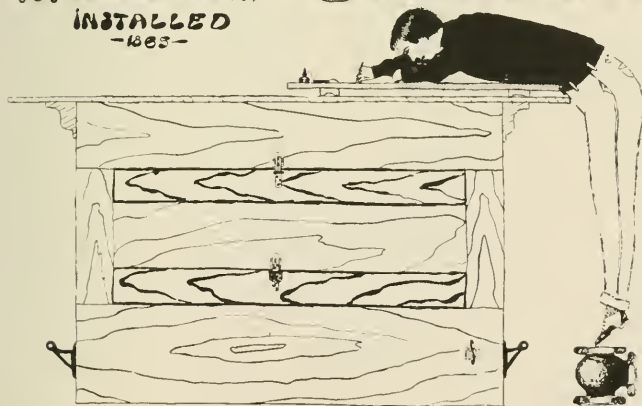

The last who came was Doctor Goodwin,
"Aha!" thought Cupid, "here's a good one,"
Again he aimed with his trusty bow,
And cruelly laid the Doctor low.

He revived his victims, one by one,
And then went away, his mission done;
Now his commands they all obey,
His meek and faithful slaves are they.

From indignant to indigent Students

The Faculty

Said THE FACULTY, all in a bunch,
" These students must get on a hunch ;
Twelve hours a day,
More work and less play,
And we'll eat frat-men, roasted, for lunch ! "

The Spieler

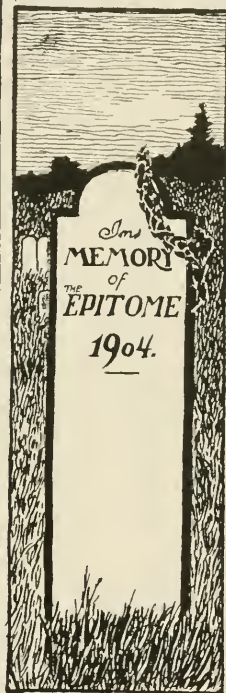

There once was a dashing young Soph,
Whose standing in Math fell 'way oph ;
And the reason, they said,
Was the fact that his haid
Had imbibed the dread virus of goph !

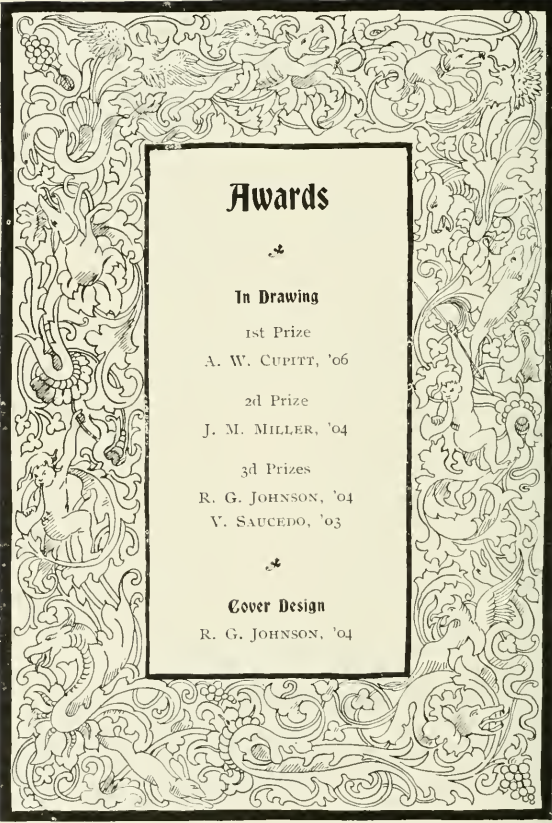

The Freshman

There was a young Freshman at Lehigh
Who said, " What a mighty man be'igh !
For at Easton, last fall,
Lafayette looked so small,
That to me, why, she didn't stand nehigh !

VEEDER TACHOMETER
Form A

The Tachometer shown herewith is our Form A, intended principally for use on automobiles and in electric power stations. We shall make also a self-contained portable Tachometer with indicator tube and reservoir attached directly to the top of the pump, which will be known as Form C.

We claim the following points of superiority:

- | | |
|--|---------------------------------|
| 1 Accuracy | 4 Indicator in Plain Sight |
| 2 Positive Drive | 5 Dispenses with Flexible Shaft |
| 3 Constant Calibration | 6 Absence of Springs and Pivots |
| 7 Not a Small Part in its Construction | |
| 8 Will last almost indefinitely, since the only wearing parts are the shaft and its bearings, and the shaft is made of hardened tool steel, ground and polished with great accuracy, and is of large size. | |

What in the world to give a friend?

College men know and the New Haven Union says, apropos of term-end with its good-bys: "The question of what in the world to give a friend at parting seems to have been solved by the publication of

Songs of All the Colleges which is alike suitable for the collegian of the past, for the student of the present, and for the boy or girl with hopes; also for the music-loving sister, and a fellow's best girl."

"All the new songs, all the old songs,
"and the songs popular at all the colleges;
"a welcome gift in any home anywhere."

FOUNDED 1749

THE oldest school of its kind in America, with a century and a half of history and experience, yet furnished with all modern equipments, and pursuing the latest improved methods.

We do not specially prepare for college, but for LIFE. Our course of study is carefully planned to give a complete and solid education, and to make our graduates broadly cultured and truly refined women, fit to meet all the duties and demands of the best modern society and a useful active life.

Our thorough scholastic instruction is only half of our work. We give equal care and attention to the training of the characters of our pupils, the formation of right habits of thought, feeling and conduct, and the development of all those qualities, virtues and graces, that enter into a self-respecting, strong and true Christian womanhood.

FIRST-CLASS BRANDS OF FUEL

The comfort which professors and students enjoy in their homes and in their fraternity houses is enhanced by the use of our special stock of Pure Upper Lehigh Coal. Place orders for winter stock in June, before the college term closes, or early in fall, and secure a good bargain.

Our stock of building material, including reliable lumber and fine mill work, is always open to inspection. A visit to our yards will repay the student who is interested in the strength of materials.
